Graduate Program Search

Date Upon Which to Report: 08/01/2023 Report to: COM

Status of Admission: Admitted to Graduate School

During the course of their assistantship activities, graduate students are expected to maintain the same high standards of ethical and moral behavior expected of faculty members (see Policy AC47 General Standards of Professional Ethics)

Satisfactory performance of assistantship activities and academic progress is a condition of the appointment. An assistantship may be terminated if a graduate student fails to meet departmental standards. Procedural guidelines are available on the Graduate School website under

GCAC-804: Termination of Assistantship Due to Inadequate Performance

Additional paperwork is required to finalize all new assistantship appointments. Please contact your department for information.

An early acceptance (or refusal) would be appreciated. If you accept an offer for fall semester before April 15, you are free to withdraw your acceptance until that date. An acceptance left in force beyond April 15 is a commitment not to accept an offer from any other university for the period of this offer. If you have received an offer after April 15, you have ten (10) working days from the date of the offer (given above) to accept. Please return signed copy of this offer. I retain a copy for your files. Acceptance of this offer will not preclude you from being offered a fellowship or traineeship at a later date. *Wherever the word "department" appears, it refers to the unit with fiscal responsibility for the student's assistantship..

II. General Conditions of a Graduate Assistantship Appointment

Period of Appointment:

The Pennsylvania State University operates on a semester calendar system. The period of instruction each semester is 15 weeks. Graduate assistants are appointed for 18 weeks each semester, for on average the number of hours per week appropriate to the assistantship type (e.g., 1/4-time, 1/2-time, or 3/4-time). All graduate assistantship appointments are made for one or two semesters and/or for the summer sessions. Students are expected to be involved in assistantship activities for an approximate total of 18 weeks per semester during the dates indicated on their Terms of Offer, not including official University holidays, campus closures (including for inclement weather, etc.) and during the spring break and the Thanksgiving holiday break. Under particular circumstances, primarily for students whose first semester will be during the summer session, students may be appointed to traditional graduate assistantships during the summer session for a period of up to 12 weeks. However, in most cases, students are appointed as Summer Lecture/Researchers during the summer sessions, see GSAD-905 Summer Lecture/Researcher

There may be exceptional circumstances such as with specialized maintenance and/or data collection from research animals, where assistantship activities must be conducted during University holidays/closures and cannot be delegated to other individuals, or when an experimental protocol runs over months and cannot be interrupted or suspended to allow time away. In such circumstances, the graduate student should be made aware prior to the start of the assistantship appointment involving the affected period, and other time away should be arranged in exchange. Students should consult with the following individuals as needed to address any concerns about a request that assistantship activities span University holidays/closures: assistantship provider, advisor (if not the same individual), graduate program chair, college/school administrator for graduate education (typically an assistant/associate/senior associate or an). Finally, if preferred or if necessary when the previously mentioned individuals cannot assist, the Associate Dean for Graduate Student Affairs in the Graduate School serves as ombudsperson for Graduate Students and is available to discuss your specific situation.

The period of appointment being offered to you is set forth above. Preference in renewals normally is given to those students who have shown superior aptitude in the performance of assistantship activities and in academic progress. A graduate assistantship may be terminated prior to completion of the full term of appointment if the student fails to meet departmental standards as described above, following due process procedures as described in

GCAC-804: Procedures for Termination of Assistantships Dues to Inadequate Performance

Eligibility:

New appointments are contingent upon the student's admission to the Graduate School as a degree-seeking student enrolled in residence. Certain IUG students in simultaneous degree programs, approved by the Dean of the Graduate School, are also eligible. Non-degree students are not eligible for assistantship appointments.

Objectives of Assistantships:

Graduate assistants are students, and graduate assistantships provide pedagogic and educational experiences designed to make students better instructors, researchers, and scholars. Thus, it is a general policy to assign graduate assistants largely scholarly tasks that will provide a useful and meaningful experience in their major field. Assistantship activities may include teaching, research, and other activities as assigned by the unit providing the assistantship.

Will all of the activities assigned to this student be required of every degree candidate in the applicable program as a condition of receiving a degree? This only applies to those Graduate Assistantship appointments where the student is performing activities in Pennsylvania. If the student is living and performing activities outside of Pennsylvania, the Yes (non-taxable) does not apply.

FALL SEMESTER: Yes (non-taxable)

SPRING SEMESTER: Yes (non-taxable)
